Smash by Land and by Air Against Italian Forces On Two Fronts

BUCHARIST, Rumania, Jan. 27.—Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu today eliminated all Iron Guardists from his cabinet and organized a strong new military government.

In forming the new government, Antonescu surrounded himself with generals who helped quell the abortive Iron Guard revolution last week and who, he knew, would uphold him without question in his attempt to purge the country of rebellious elements.

Alleged Iron Guard terrorists sneaking through the streets of Bucharest in a blinding blizzard were being picked up one by one today by bayonet-armed soldiers. After days of hiding, some of them in dark alleys, basements and unfinished buildings, the fugitives were being forced into the open by hunger and cold.

Vice premier Hora Sima, leader of the Iron Guard and official-described leader of last week's revolt, is under arrest, officials circles said.

British Push On

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 27.—British imperial forces, smashing by land and air at Italy's African empire on fronts 2,000 miles apart, have driven nearly 80 miles into Eritrea and are continuing Libyan preparations for an assault on the Port of Derna, the middle east command announced.

British headquarters announced also that 25,000 Italian prisoners had been seized in last week's capture of the Libyan port base of Tobruk and that 1,100 prisoners from five years ago, taken in the invasion of Eritrea. These figures brought to 111,000 the number of Italian prisoners reported taken by the British since they launched their African offensive.

Pacing the land operations in the Derna Area, the RAF announced raids on the landing ground there and at Barce, another Libyan base, where a number of fascist craft on the ground and buildings were reported hit.

Five Italian planes were reported downed. A sixth Italian craft was said to have been destroyed on a landing field. One British plane was reported missing.

Penmanship Teacher Dies

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.—Dr. P. O. Peterson, 64, director of the Peterson system of penmanship used in many Ohio and Pennsylvania public schools, is dead.

noon after an illness of complications.

He had also served two terms as recorder of Columbiana county, having been first elected to the office in 1903. He was then elected to two terms as state representative, the first time in 1912, and then was elected and served two terms as state senator from this district.

While a member of the legislature, Mr. White, a lover of bird-life of which he had made an extensive study, sponsored and secured passage of a bill removing quail from the game bird list and placing it on the song bird list, a measure which some forces are now seeking to repeal.

He was also a former schoolmaster, retiring in 1933 after having taught in schools of the county for a period of 33 years. He first taught in the rural schools near Salineville, and after his return from the legislature accepted a position in the local schools. He was principal of the Lincoln school for several years prior to his retirement, since which time he has served as attendance officer. He was an authority on history and had one of the best collections of historical events in Columbiana county.

Services will be held at the family home at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday in charge of Rev. J. Morgan Cox, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Burial will be in the Lisbon cemetery.

Jobless Workers
Are Paid $126,562

A total of $126,562.33 was returned to Salem trade channels during 1940 in the form of benefits paid jobless workers by the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, Arthur S. Johnston, manager of the Salem Employment Security Center, announced today.

December unemployment benefit payments amounted to $3,592.89, Manager Johnston said, an increase of 14.6 per cent over November compensation amounts.

Average weekly benefit amount for total unemployment in December was $10.40, and for partial unemployment, the average check was for $5.01.

New claims for unemployment compensation received by the Salem center during December numbered 95, an increase compared to new claims filed the previous month.

Salem employers hired 48 workers through the Employment Security Center during December, for jobs lasting more than 30 days, Manager Johnston reported. These placements represented an increase of 4.9 per cent over November employment figures.

Applications for jobs were received at the center from 309 workers in December. At the end of last month, there were 663 workers registered for jobs, Manager Johnston said.

Dimes Accumulate
To Fight Paralysis

All the dimes you see in the large display window of the Home Savings & Loan Co., E. State st., represent donations in the city's annual infantile paralysis campaign.

City Chairman Chester Gow today announced that the campaign has passed the $100 mark and will be continued throughout the week.

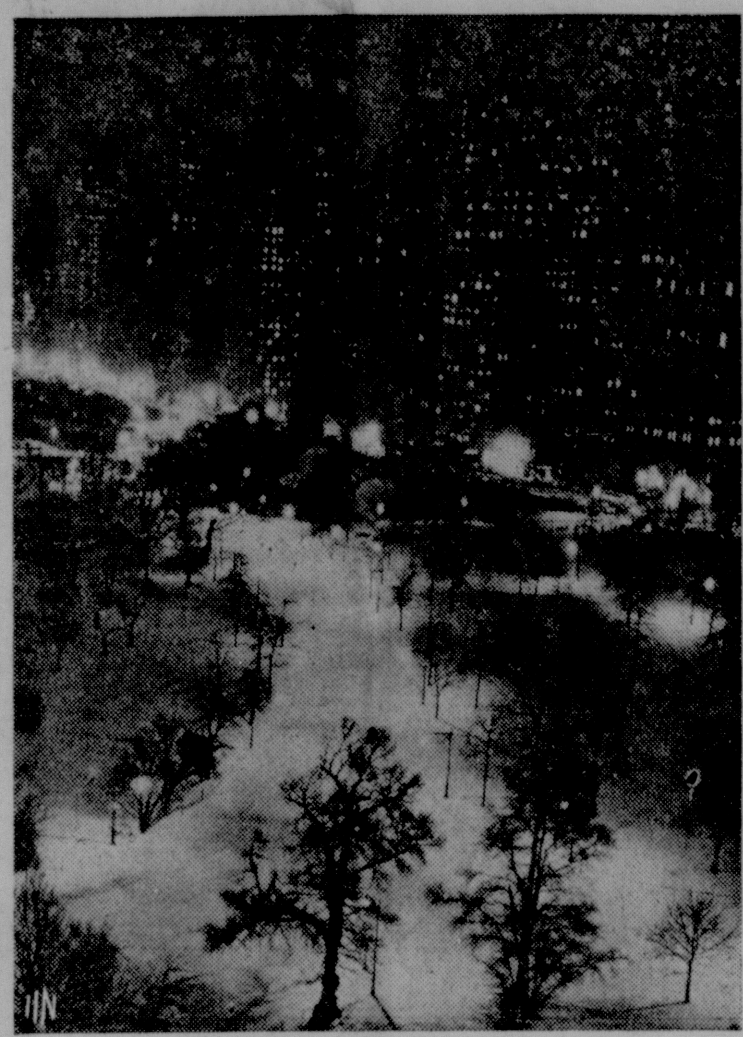

Contributions will be added to the window display as rapidly as they are received.

Fifty per cent of the money is kept in Salem. The other half is used largely in research work throughout the country. In many instances it helps to buy iron lungs and other equipment used in fighting paralysis.

PORTSMOUTH, Jan. 27.—A grand jury probably will consider in February the case of Mrs. Goldie Pauley, 30, who pleaded innocent to first degree murder in the shotgun slaying of her husband, Lee, 42, Prosecutor Marvin Kelly reported.

Mrs. Pauley said following her arrest that her husband last Monday threatened to kill her and their five children in their farm home.

WILLKIE VISITS
CHURCHILL; PLANS
TRIP TO IRELAND

Will Be Glad to See Him, De Valera Announces In Dublin

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Jan. 27.—Wendell L. Willkie delivered President Roosevelt's message to Prime Minister Churchill at luncheon today and disclosed that he intended to talk with Prime Minister Eamon de Valera during a visit to neutral Eire.

(In Dublin it was announced De Valera would "be very glad indeed" to see Willkie.)
The American lunched with Churchill after spending an hour at the foreign ministry with Foreign Minister Anthony Eden.

He informed 200 British newspaper men earlier that he hoped to stay in England about two weeks, viewing wartime conditions.

The exuberant Willkie, who arrived in London yesterday after a flying trip from the United States, pointed out again that he was in England as an individual and not in a governmental capacity, quipping:

Not a Government Man
"You will remember that the people decided I should not have anything to do with the government."

He had a date today with Prime Minister Churchill, for whom he brought a letter from President Roosevelt, and he added that he hoped to talk with other British political leaders and the heads of Polish, Czech, Norwegian and the Netherlands governments.

After the press conference he went to the foreign office for a talk with Foreign Minister Anthony Eden.

His surprise announcement that he hoped to visit Ireland raised speculation in neutral quarters as to whether he might plead Britain's cause for the important ports of Lough Swilly and Cobh for anti-submarine warfare.

To the question "do you think the United States will come into the war?" Willkie replied: "I can not speak on that. I have no connection with the government in any way."

He said he would remain in London for the next three or four days, then begin a tour of the provinces. He also said he hoped to visit naval, military and air units.

GASOLINE STATION

ROBBERY THWARTED

Patrolman Clifford Todd was "Johnny on the spot" early this morning and frightened away a would-be burglar at Robert Groner's service station on W. State st.

The officer, driving past in the police cruiser at 4:15 a. m., turned the car spotlight on the station, thought something looked irregular, and turned about.

Todd found that the intruder had smashed a pane of glass in the front door of the station to gain entrance but, apparently, was frightened away before stealing anything. Groner, who was called, found nothing missing.

Snow Blankets City, State;
Few Accidents Are Reported

Four More Inches of Snow Sunday Piled On Top of Friday's Fall; Traffic Is Impeded

Sleet, snow, rain and fog plagued Ohio today. In Salem, where it was all snow and four inches of it, vehicular traffic was slowed considerably. Children, with Christmas gifts of skis and sleds, were afforded a grand opportunity to try them out.

The four inches of snow which fell in the Salem district yesterday and this morning, piled up on the four and three-quarter inches which blanketed the district Friday. That snow had melted only a little.

Letter carriers found the going tough this morning.

The state highway patrol, which reported roads throughout Ohio as dangerously slippery, investigated five traffic accidents over the weekend, but none of any serious consequence. Five mishaps were reported to city police. Two persons were reported injured.

Walks Against Car

Thomas Dickson of 884 Franklin ave., was treated at City hospital of abrasions of the chin, suffered when he walked into the side of an automobile on E. State st., in front of the Grand theater, at 1 a. m. Sunday, according to police.

The car was driven by Donald Murphy of Damascus.

O. C. Osmundson of Pittsburgh received an injury to his left knee when his automobile and a car operated by Glen Hellman of Ravenna collided on Route 39, just southeast of Lisbon, at 3 p. m. yesterday, according to the patrol.

A minor collision at the intersection of S. Lincoln ave. and Franklin st., at 6:30 p. m. Saturday involved cars driven by Joseph Needham of 473 Euclid st. and Roland Coy of South ave., police said. Machines driven by Clarence Callahan of 550 Ohio ave. and James Blockson of R. D. 3, Salem, were involved in a minor crash at the corner of Ohio ave. and E. State st.

A collision yesterday at the intersection of Franklin and S. Ellsworth ave. involved cars operated by Robert Irey of 820 Homewood ave. and Cornell Labotka of R. D. 3.

Temperatures in the state ranged from 23 to 40 today. Salem thermometers stood at the freezing mark. Sleet and snow covered central and southern areas of Ohio.

Toledo had 5 1/2 inches of snow at midnight, much of it new. In Cleveland, five inches was on the ground when a freezing rain set in. City work crews worked all night dumping 225 tons of salt on ice-coated streets. Air travel was cancelled.

Rain Follows Snow
The storm developed yesterday, dropping a brief fall of new snow over the central part of the state. As the snow moved north, rain followed in the middle area. Several inches of snow were reported at Mansfield and Ashland.

Despite the dangerous condition of the highways, few traffic fatalities were reported. They included:

YOUNGSTOWN — Edward Howard Jones, 39, in crash; Michael Meek, 48, struck by automobile.

ELYRIA — Mrs. Lucy Loney and Mrs. Charles C. Penrod of Cleveland, in automobile-truck crash.

CLEVELAND — Clyde Cutsinger, 10, killed by father's truck when it was backed over him.

TROY — Ralph Tillman, 23, died of injuries from crash in which seven others were injured.

PIQUA — Mrs. Gertrude Peck, 66, killed by automobile.

CLEVELAND — Mrs. Dolores McLain, 20, bride of three months, killed by car.

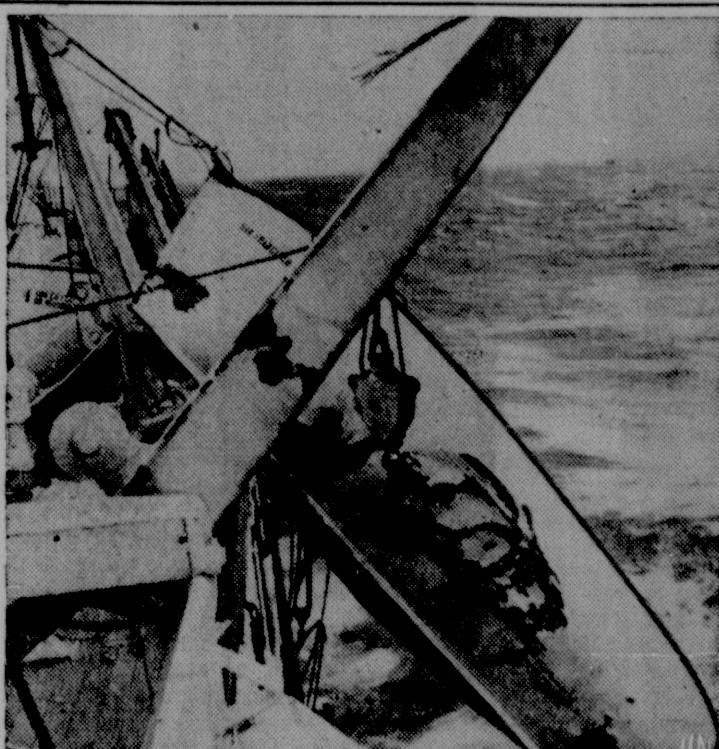

Lockmaster Dies

MARIETTA, Jan. 27.—Lockmaster Samuel J. Lee at Dam 17 on the Ohio river died over the weekend. He was a government employee 40 of his 58 years.

Reviews Effects of World Events On American Foreign Policy

ASKS TESTIMONY
BE KEPT A SECRET

Declares Aid to Britain Won't Involve U. S. In War

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Secretary Hull was reported to have told the senate foreign relations committee today that long efforts to obtain mutual understanding and cooperation between the United States and Japan had been virtually fruitless.

Committee members said the secretary of state devoted much of a two-hour closed session to a discussion of relations between the two nations.

Hull, the first witness in the committee's study of the aid-to-Britain bill, had asked permission to present some testimony behind closed doors. He explained that he wanted to present information which might bear on the bill "but which should not be made known to every nation."

In asking that he be permitted to testify privately, Hull said that publicity "would not be compatible with the public interest and might be injurious to our national security."

Hull also was reported to have said that the increased assistance to Britain envisioned in the bill would not involve the United States in the European war.

After the session, Committee Chairman George (D-Ga.) told reporters that Hull had discussed at length the effect of world events within the last eight years on American foreign policy.

The house committee also met in executive session today in an effort to continue its study of the legislation after two weeks of hearings. It first heard confidential testimony from Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and was scheduled to hear Gen. George C. Marshall, the army's chief of staff, later in the day.

Think Bill Will Win
Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack told reporters today that the general sentiment in the house "is overwhelmingly" in favor of enactment of the bill.

McCormack said he would be "disappointed" if the measure is not taken up next Monday and action completed at the end of next week "after reasonable debate."

Salem Lad 'Shoots'
Army Ski Patrols

Albert J. Freed of Salem, who has been a member of the Fifth Signal company at Fort Custer, Michigan, has been given a specialist's rating and ordered to Camp McCoy, in the northern part of Wisconsin, to make motion pictures of the winter training of Uncle Sam's newly formed ski patrols.

Freed, accompanied by a fellow photographer and a sound technician, arrived at Camp McCoy a week ago, and he expects his assignment will keep him there six weeks to two months. Two sound movies, depicting the training and tactics of the ski troops, will be completed. One picture will be released to the public while the other will be used for training purposes by the war department.

Freed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freed, 370 N. Lundy ave., will assist March of Time cameramen during the filming of shots to be used in a new issue. He assisted in several sequences of the January issue, "Arm and the Men," which were taken at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

All motion picture subjects shown to the public are under close supervision of the U. S. Signal corps. Upon completion of his assignment at Fort McCoy, Freed may depart for Chillyithe barracks, Alaska, for further pictorial survey.

"Unloaded" Gun Fatal
HAMILTON, Jan. 27.—Fourteen-year-old Bennie Barton died of wounds from an "unloaded" shotgun which discharged into his abdomen after he handed the weapon to a playmate. A blood transfusion from the grief-stricken playmate, also 14, failed to save Bennie's life.

Fire Routs 8 Sleepers
YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 27.—Fire, blamed on a cigaret stub tossed from a bed, Sunday morning routed eight persons and did approximately $5,000 damage to the Haselton building which was considered a landmark on Youngstown's east side.

OHIO LAWMAKERS'
PROGRAM DRAGS;
NOW IN 4TH WEEK

Legislators Still Minus Program for Solving Chief Problems

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Jan. 27.—Members of the Ohio legislature who wanted the current session to win a medal for speed began to grow skeptical today.

The general assembly enters its fourth week minus a tangible program for solving the state's most important problems.

True, Gov. John W. Bricker submitted some ideas, but only one bill has been introduced to carry out those recommendations, and it is stalled indefinitely.

The measure, carrying $2,200,000 to reimburse local governments for 1940 relief expenditures, was rushed through the senate and referred a week ago to a house committee which has yet to consider it.

Only one bill has been enacted, the $76,000,000 partial appropriation measure, and the legislators had to pass that by Jan. 15 so that they and state employees could get their paychecks on schedule.

A few bills have been offered to help the financially distressed cities and counties, which Speaker William McCulloch says is the legislature's greatest concern. None, however, appears to have the administration's approval.

Asked when measures would be introduced to carry out the governor's suggestions, McCulloch replied that Republican leaders must do a lot of figuring on finances before going into action.

NO DISAGREEMENT

An amazing situation now exists in the federal government. Congress has signified by passing the Logan-Walter bill that it is convinced an intolerable condition has been created in certain of the administrative agencies that have telescoped executive, judicial and legislative functions.

President Roosevelt has pointed out that there is no sanction for such agencies in the Constitution and that they threaten to develop a fourth branch of the government. The attorney general's committee on administrative procedure, appointed to study the problem, has submitted a majority report recommending a number of positive steps to separate administrative and judicial functions.

In a minority report, it is argued that the steps recommended by the majority don't go far enough in this direction. There is, in other words, an unanimous opinion that the streamlined administrative agencies embody a distinct threat to the traditional American way of dealing out justice, which calls first of all for a separation of powers.

Significantly, the committee members who have been studying the problem for two years all agree that judicial and prosecutive functions should be separated, but recommend a remedy calling for separation of powers within the agencies, rather than the Logan-Walter bill solution, which was to subject rules and decisions of certain agencies to review of existing courts. This conforms with a general impression that it would be an injustice both to the courts and the administrative agencies to shift the latter's troubles to an already busy branch of the government.

The committee's recommendations include an office of federal administrative procedure to review the practices of administrative agencies; a corps of relatively independent officers to hold hearings, with agency heads acting as appellate tribunals; and provisions that persons investigating and presenting cases shall have no hand in deciding them. Apparently there is no dissent to the general purpose of these recommendations. It remains to be seen what will be done about them. The decision is fraught with more meaning for the preservation of democratic processes than that on any other question, including the much better publicized lend-lease bill.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN EXPERT

Before the detractors of Col. Lindbergh's qualifications to testify on matters of foreign policy go the limit, they'd better pause briefly for station identification.

This "Sez who?" stuff has a dirty habit of coming home to roost. True, Col. Lindbergh has not spent a lifetime studying international law, history of foreign relations, influence of navies on world history, the international balance of power, the westward movement of military and economic influence and the effect of diet on national characteristics. Who has?

Real experts on foreign policy, like real experts on the go'd standard, can be numbered on the fingers of both hands and no two of them agree about anything. Col. Lindbergh may be no more fitted to expound on the subject of foreign relations than Mickey Rooney is fitted to hold forth on the subject of variable factors in the determination of the sex of chickadees, but those who say so must be prepared to prove this distinguishes him from the other expounders.

One of the delightful things about this country is the privilege of every man to be his own expert. There are experts on everything, including experts on experts. It looks as though all shades and varieties were going to be represented in the hearings of the foreign affairs committee on the lend-lease bill—and that's as it should be. If the committee could find an expert on foreign policy, that would be helpful, too, but first it would have to find one.

NEXT DOOR TO TROUBLE

Rumania's troubles, hard to understand, like almost everything that happens in the Balkans, might easily turn out to be the key to all news for the war's duration.

Rumania's fate is inextricably bound up with Russian foreign policy. If the civil strife reported raging in the country, despite recurrent declarations that it has been subdued, hastens German domination of Rumanian affairs, the long-awaited clash between the red and brown revolutions may be precipitated.

It is a guess, but still a good one, that ultimately Russia and Germany will reach a point where collaboration ceases to be tolerable. Many of the best informed guessers surmise that the breaking point will be concerned somehow with Germany's encroachment on Russia's sphere of influence in the Black sea area. Russia's previous steps to counteract German absorption of territory—seizure of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, part of Poland, Bessarabia and Bukovina—foreshadow a showdown if Germany attempts to establish itself on the shores of the Black sea, in position to command Bulgaria and Turkey. The entire strategy of the balance of power, practiced as assiduously in the Balkans as on the continent at large, may be at stake in Rumania if it turns out that civil strife is being fomented as preparation for a Nazi move "to restore order."

FOR THE SAKE OF ARGUMENT

Sometimes things are said for the sake of argument that would better be left unsaid. At the moment, for example, it is being said that the United States must pull out all stops in behalf of aiding Great Britain because the British hold the key to American security. Then in the same breath it is said that the chances of the British winning are 50-50, which seems to put this nation's security on a 50-50 basis.

This is the same as shouting in a campaign that if the people elect John Jones the country will be ruined, then persuading listeners who took the warning literally that even though John won the election everything is going to turn out all right; i. e., it would better have been left unsaid in the first place. The United States would be favored by successful British resistance for the simple reason that British collapse would leave it to face alone a formidable combination of powers whose spokesman, Adolf Hitler, despises it.

However, to say or to imply that the United States has only a 50-50 chance of survival because the battle of Britain is a tossup is to ignore the most vital single fact about the modern world—that the United States, whose armament program will reach a climax about 1945 is destined to be the strongest power in existence. Whatever happens to today's belligerents, they are exhausting themselves at a terrific rate while America is on the verge of developing the most formidable military machine in history—for tomorrow.

British resistance to the forces that threaten to make Americans use their strength is desirable. In the sense that it gives the United States time to arm, it even may be imperative. But it is not the key to the preservation of the United States of America. That key is the productive capacity and leadership of the American people.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, January 28

THE astral influences bearing rule on the affairs of this day should be read as rather difficult, adverse and erratic, although there is nothing that may not be remedied by patience, courage, determination and the ability to rationalize and keep grimly resolved to hold an optimistic philosophy.

Those whose birthday it is, may encounter a year calling for all their native stamina, fortitude, courage and good sense in order to overcome rather adverse conditions, unsettlement and serious problems threatening the security of health as well as possessions. With sound logic applied, all may be turned to enduring benefit.

A child born on this day may be very impressionable and imaginative, it should be early directed to safe and sane modes of conduct and thinking.

Among the finest moments in the course of a day comes when some rugged young American flexes his muscles and speaks a few patriotic words. All we oldsters can do is stir within.

The beaming face of Mr. Garner as he packed his grip preparatory to going back home to stay is about as fine an advertisement as Texas could want.

There is a drive on in Japan to purify the language. A good start might be on "incident."

HER "LAVALIERE"

RESEARCHES ON DUCTLESS GLANDS

Actual Results Recalled By Dr. Clendening

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In the clinic I saw:

A boy, sixteen years of age, very short in stature, overweight, mentally sluggish retarded in every way. After nine months' treatment consisting simply of the injection of ductless gland extracts, he grew 4 inches in height, lost 35 pounds was sufficiently alert mentally to jump two grades in school.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

An elderly woman who had grown very stout suddenly, and had shed her family by slovenly habits of dropping food, soiling her clothes, and sitting all day in a torpid, indifferent state so much so that it was contemplated putting her in an asylum brought back to life in three months, getting back to normal weight, taking a normal interest in life—all accomplished by simply feeding her some tablets.

Other Successful Cases

The fat boy from Pickwick Papers, if ever you saw him—rolly-poly, with hard fat masses and blond pale skin, mentally alert in the intervals when he was not drooping off to sleep—restored to a normal young man of fifteen.

A young woman who had once taken a prize in a beauty contest, looking fifty years older than she really was, reduced to skin and bones—restored by some ductless gland extract (plus forced feeding) to some semblance of her former self.

Researchers, Doctors and Chemists

These are some of the actual results of modern ductless gland treatment. We are warned by those who have had the most experience not to place too much faith in the outcome of any case about to take such treatment. There are more failures than successes, they say. But here, at least, with my own eyes I saw the above results.

Undoubtedly there is advance going on in this field. The results are better than they used to be.

The credit for this advance must be given to three groups:

The research workers, who have gone over the experiments done earlier and checked them, eliminated the cause of the mistakes, and of course have gone on to new and different experiments with some epoch-making results.

The chemists and manufacturers who have given us better and more reliable products of these glands. There are at least ten new extracts which have definite uses, which were not available to the doctors a few years ago.

The practicing doctors in the clinics who are checking their results more carefully and learning by experience what to do and what not to do. In this connection a warning is timely that self-medication with these products is dangerous and certainly unreliable. All the skill of the best and most experienced physicians is needed to attain good results.

During this week we will summarize new developments in the field of the ductless glands.

Questions and Answers

A. B. C.:—"I would like to know is there any cure for varicose veins an, if so, what is it?"

Answer:—We have always recommended in this column that the injection treatment of varicose veins be given a trial first. In skillful hands this does not necessitate going to a hospital or even losing time from work for as much as a day. In most instances, the injection is really preferable to operative removal because it coagulates more veins.

"HONEYMOON PREFERRED" by May Christie

SYNOPSIS

How could she win back Walter Mallory, well known lawyer? That was the question uppermost in the mind of Jean Garrett, lovely young debutante as she danced with Tommy Allen, society playboy at the Yacht Club. A few nights previous, Walter had told her he would not be third man in a party which included Helen Hobart, Pedro de Moraes and Tommy, and had dropped out of the picture. To add to Jean's chagrin, he was squiring the beautiful Helen Hobart tonight. Overhearing a remark that Walter was planning a party aboard his yacht later that night, Jean contrives to see him alone, hoping we will invite her. He treats her cold and refuses to permit a photographer to take their pictures together, sarcastically remarking, "Press agent stuff isn't my line." Paired because Walter didn't invite her either, Helen Hobart induces Tommy to slip out of the club with her and board Walter's cruiser, "Sloop Petrel," for a fast ride. Suspecting mischief, Jean follows and tries in vain to get Tommy off the boat. Just as she starts it, Helen jumps back on the pier, leaving Jean alone with him. Later in the cabin, Jean's curiosity gets the better of her and she peeks into the clothes closet. What a shock! Next to Walter's clothing were a woman's pajamas and negligee! A patrol boat orders Tommy to stop. He refuses. A shot cuts the mast in two and Tommy's arm is pierced by a flying splinter. Tommy and Jean are arrested, but Walter refuses to press charges, saying Jean was authorized to use the boat. She would not tell him Helen instigated the escapade because he would only think her jealous. Rupert Van Aukken, Jean's stepfather, threatens to cut her allowance if she gets into similar difficulties. And, from Cuba, her pleasure-loving mother, Laurel, rebukes her with, "At least for my sake, keep out of such headlines! How do you suppose you're ever going to make a decent marriage?" Low in spirit, Jean welcomes a date with Pedro. They go to "The Blue Owl," a night club owned by Green, "The Gook," a questionable character. He introduces a Parisian singer, Mademoiselle Gaby. Pedro takes one look and suggests that he and Jean leave.

CHAPTER SIX

They slid quietly out a nearby door. Visited a couple of night spots. It was two in the morning when he kissed her goodnight at her own front door. She hadn't meant to let Pedro kiss her. She tried to pretend that it was Walter Mallory.

Next night, when Pedro had again left to take a few days, she was in the St. Regis dining room. Tommy (his flesh wound almost healed now) when she saw Walter with a beautifully-gowned, statuesque blonde. That hurt Jean. Was this the girl whose negligee was on his boat? They left early, probably theater-bound.

Later, Tommy wanted to go on to The Blue Owl. Jean demurred, but he coaxed her: "Slumming's my dish tonight!"

Green, the proprietor, who admired Jean, brought the new singer, Mademoiselle Gaby, to their table. She told them she had arrived in America three weeks ago. Jean asked her bluntly: "And why did you pick on this place?" It was uncomplimentary to Green. "The Gook." He was handsome, but too noisy. Staring at her so boldly that he deserved to be snubbed.

"For a reason," the young singer answered, smiling. But only with her lips, not eyes. "You also, Miss Garrett, you have been in France, perhaps?"

"Oh yes. As a matter of fact,"—laughing—"I was there before I was born! Isn't that quaint? My mother was in Paris, but came home so that I would be born in America."

A look of strange interest, almost of excitement, lit the young Gaby's lovely features.

"Your father? Was he French?" The girl looked so strange, Jean wondered if she were a bit touched in the head?

"No. A hundred-per-cent American doughboy. If that interests you."

"And your mother? She is alive?" Jean nodded. "She's abroad at this moment."

A few days later, Treves the butler tapped on the drawing room door of the handsome house on Park Avenue. He told Jean there was a foreign young lady desirous of seeing her. She would not give her name.

It was the girl from The Blue Owl. "Forgive me, I found this in the cub." She produced a small silk compact. "I think maybe it is yours."

It was. The girl refused a reward. "I'm dressed as she was, that seemed odd. She stared about her, Jean wondered uneasily if "The Gook" had sent her to spy out the lay of the land?

"These are beautiful white roses. Perhaps from the young man they wrote about in the newspapers, saying you often go with him to The Blue Owl?"

"Tommy Allen? No. They came from Pedro de Moraes, the singer." "Ah! Pedro de Moraes?" A sharp intake of breath.

"You know him?" Jean asked, watching her guest suspiciously.

"I have met him in Paris. But I do not know him well. Miss Garrett."

"He's sailing at midnight for engagements in Cuba," Jean said. "A lot of us are going down to the Sarnia to give him a swell send-off."

"You like him, Miss Garrett?" in sharp inquiry.

Jean was annoyed at the hint of disparagement in her voice. Also at her inquisitiveness.

"I like him extremely. I think he's a fine fellow. I'm crazy about him," she added to put the other in her place.

"You will perhaps come with him tonight to The Blue Owl?" Jean shook her head. She was to have a farewell rendezvous with Pedro at ten, but certainly wouldn't mention that.

The girl craned her neck round, and as she did so, her gaze fell upon a painting of Laurel on the wall. She rose and went up to it. "That's my mother," Jean told her. "Isn't she pretty?"

No answer.

"What is the matter? Why, you look as if you were staring at a ghost," Jean exclaimed.

The strange girl broke into an elderly laugh. The great room seemed to be filled with that horrible laughter. She was choking, gurgling.

"Stop it! How dare you laugh at my mother's picture?" Jean demanded indignantly.

Gaby's laughter grew higher and higher. A horrible sound. The queer girl was crazy! She'd been a fool to receive her! Jean pressed the bell-push for the butler.

"Forgive me — Miss Garrett!" The strange girl was struggling to regain her composure. "The picture—so beautiful—it upset me. It reminded me of my own mother."

Treves arrived with a decanter of cherry and glasses on a silver tray. He thought that his young mistress's ring had indicated that.

"Or shall I mix cocktails, Miss Garrett?" he suggested. She saw him give a queer side look at the shabby visitor. Then his face at the well-trained English butler resumed its immobility.

Gaby gasped: "I will take a glass of sherry, if you please."

She drank it, contrary to French custom, rather fast. Color returned to the olive cheeks.

"It is a great pleasure to meet you again, Miss Garrett." The voice, thought Jean, had a curiously intense timbre.

Why was the girl staring at her so intently? Jean had the feeling there were queer undercurrents here. Then she was plotting something.

"Why?" she asked bluntly. "Because—" A pause.

Jean thought: "She's probably going to ask me to do something to help her." But if that were so, why had she refused a monetary reward for the return of the gold compact?

Was she playing for higher stakes?

And what was Green "the Gook" to this unlovely handsome young girl? What had brought her to his dive?

That she was under an extraordinary tension was obvious.

Orchids from a Holly Grower

Buick SUPER Sedan, $1185.*

ORDINARILY we don't go in for owner-testimonials.

But every now and then, along comes a letter that so perfectly portrays the way Buick owners feel about their cars that we haven't the heart to keep it from you.

Here, for example, we quote from Mr. Ambrose Brownell, English holly grower of Milwaukie, Ore.

"... When I drove that '41 SUPER out of Flint... and started a circle trip home... I jotted down each gas purchase and mileage to sort of figure my expenses...

"It wasn't long before I got suspicious of something wrong... The gas gauge needle just didn't go down fast enough...

"But, Roy, all the way home it was the same story. The Buick wormed through miles of city traffic... made numberless stops to inquire directions, purred along in sizzling heat that made my feet feel like two fried eggs, breezed over the Rockies at 9,000 elevation... and finally fairly stole home through the sinuous Columbia Gorge.

"Statistics? Of course: 3,200 miles; 165 gallons... Ethyl gas; 19.51 miles per gallon; gas expense—1⁹/₁₀₀¢ per mile; total out-of-pocket expense—1²⁸/₁₀₀¢ per mile.

"... Roy, I'm glad I bought a Buick."

Mr. Brownell has other nice things to say about his Compound Carburetion-equipped 1941 SUPER.

But the point is that everywhere Buick is running up such astonishing records for thrift that letters like this are commonplace.

Why not drop in on your local dealer and try out the thrifty traveler that brings us orchids from a holly grower?

CINNAMON BROWN NEW COLOR FOR SPRING SEASON

The spring season will see a new color that will be a favorite for all types of costumes, all climates and all occasions. It is cinnamon brown. The three photographs above prove how popular this color has become, as it predominates in all three costumes. Rosalind Russell, left, has selected a tri-colored combination in her new dressmaker coat. The dolman sleeves are gathered in a wrist strap. The shoulder tucks permit front fullness in the upper section, with the fabric in graduating sections of beige, tan and cinnamon. Beige felt hat, cinnamon suede bag and beige gloves complete the outfit. Margaret Hayes, who was Miss

Los Angeles in a recent fashion show, center, is modeling an evening gown designed by Charles Cooper. The bodice is a coppery cinnamon crepe, the very full skirt is in layers of organza, brown over white, a very smart effect. Rhinestone buttons form the front closing. Laraine Day, right, is shown in a travel suit which combines suede and tweed. The jacket is cinnamon brown suede lined in green, gold and brown plaid tweed, the tweed showing on collar and lapels. The jacket is worn over a straight tweed skirt. Hat, gloves, bag and shoes are in the same cinnamon brown as the jacket.

FIGHT IS PRESSED ON "TVA OF WEST"

Colorado Governor Leads Foes of Arkansas Valley Plan

DENVER—Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado has started a one-man revolution against a congressional proposal for creation of an Arkansas Valley Authority similar to TVA.

The governor, a Republican who spent a quarter of a century as a water and irrigation expert before he turned to politics, charges that the entire future of the western states depends on defeat of the plan.

Carr started his revolution in a scathing inaugural address and announced he would seek to stir up a barrage of protest against the plan from the legislatures and citizens of every state west of the Mississippi river.

"You men of the west have been brought to the verge of a bloodless civil war," he said of the AVA plan in his inaugural address after he was sworn in for a second term.

"The proposal constitutes the greatest menace to state's rights and individual liberties which exists today."

Bill Affects Eight States

The congressional plan was introduced in both houses of the 77th congress by the Democratic delegation from Arkansas. The bills would set up a three-man directorate to direct an authority to take over all dams and reservoirs of the White, St. Francis, Arkansas and Red rivers in eight states.

The states are Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri, Louisiana and Arkansas, and they comprise a drainage district of 308,165 square miles.

Dams and power projects in the whole area would be taken over by the authority. Among these would be the huge Caddo dam project in southeastern Colorado to provide irrigation and flood control for farms in Colorado and western Kansas.

The Colorado governor says the AVA plan, if adopted, would "erase state lines, deny state ownership of property and destroy the rights of individuals."

The proposals, he argues, would be "destroy state control over the waters of all rivers and jeopardize every decreed water right belonging to the farmers."

State's Rights Championed

"The whole system of life within these river basins is to be altered and changed to conform with a theory of government which nullifies constitutional rights and leaves individual states stripped of everything but their names," he said in his speech.

"Water users who divert water under state decrees now would be denied the right to such water when the corporation determines that it must be released to meet navigation demands, to develop power or to be impounded for storage purposes behind some federal dam."

The governor called for immediate protests to congress by all states involved.

"We must establish the injustice to this plan," he said. "Those of us who believe in the west and who realize that our great source of life and wealth and of future growth lies in the cultivation of the lands along irrigation streams must realize that there is no justification for the seizure of a river basin under asserted federal authority to the absolute destruction of every theory, of every detail, of every title, of every dream of the people who have built a great civilization."

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The "visiting judge" system in Pennsylvania saved the state $50,000 last year, commonwealth officials have revealed. A total of $52,453 was spent by the state on judges assigned by the Supreme Court to preside over trials in other than their own counties.

FOUR NEW BUICKS COMING OUT SOON

Returning from a business session of the Buick zone in Cleveland, Wilbur L. Coy announced today that this division of General Motors corporation will shortly introduce four new automobiles in a lower price bracket as an addition to the present Series 40 Special Buick line.

"While details of the new cars will not be available until the end of the week, I can say that they are the answer to the demand of a mighty big cross section of the country for a Buick built in a more compact size with all the big car engineering and design qualities that characterize the larger Buick cars," Coy said.

"They have a shorter wheelbase and shorter over all length and new bodies, but are otherwise identical with the Series 40 Buicks. That is why they are being introduced as an addition to the Series 40 line rather than as a new model."

Coy said that the new cars will be lower in price and will have performance and economy even better than the present Series 40 cars.

The new cars will be formally announced Feb. 1 and be on display at that time, he said.

CLOTHES DAMAGED BY SMOKE AND SOOT

Sulphur Deposits Eat Into Cloth Unless Frequently Cleaned

Smoke and soot may make clothes dirty but that isn't all for in fact smoke and soot of en are responsible for damage to cloth.

Many kinds of fuel widely used in various parts of the country are rich in free sulphur. In imperfect combustion, this sulphur is thrown into the air in the form of sulphur trioxide.

The chemical compound clings to the clothes. When they become damp, it combines with the water to form sulphuric acid.

L. C. Price, general manager of the Paris Cleaners, points out that the corrosive action of the acid upon the cloth is not violent and the damage may not appear for some time but it will continue to eat and eventually cause the garments to "fall to pieces." This action is often noticed with the family wash because here damp clothes hang out in the smoke and soot and air under exceptionally favorable conditions.

Mr. Price advises you to have your clothing cleaned often, with modern solvents, which do not contain water, as the safest way to overcome this damaging action of sulphuric acid.

FLIERS TO LEARN IN HIGH ALTITUDE

Course At Wright Field Will Stress Latest War Tactics

DAYTON—Recognizing the growing importance of subsonic flying modern warfare, the army air corps has established a school at Wright field to instruct officers in technique of high-altitude flight. The one-week school is conducted by the Wright field aero medical research laboratory, under the direction of Capt. Otis O. Benson, Jr., chief of the laboratory.

Thirty officers from tactical and training centers of the air corps formed the first class and three other classes will be offered in succeeding weeks to other groups of 30 officers each. At the end of the training, the 120 officers will go back to their stations and serve as instructors to pilots, flying cadets and other flying personnel in the technique of high-altitude flight.

Use Oxygen Equipment

The school, with emphasis upon the use of oxygen equipment, is the first of its kind to be conducted by the army air corps.

Wright field officers said that observations from the European war indicated a trend toward the upper levels of the air by bombers and interceptor planes which must fight them.

As a result of the European experience, instructions in the use of oxygen equipment and in military aerial tactics at high altitudes are expected to become a part of routine air corps training within a short time.

Included in the special "teacher training" here are demonstrations with a 40-foot altitude pressure chamber. The effects of high altitude flight can be reproduced by a process which reduces the density of air within the chamber to that of any desired altitude.

Go Up 38,000 Feet

These experiments are climaxed by a reproduction of an ascension to a height of 38,000 feet. Members of the classes are subjects and each is equipped with oxygen masks and oxygen supply equipment.

The visiting officers also go up in groups of 10 in a big army bomber to altitudes of around 30,000 feet for mass tests of the new oxygen equipment in actual subsonic flight.

On the ground, lectures are delivered by Capt. Benson and other officers on such subjects as parachute escape at high altitude, altitude sickness and air sickness, pilot fatigue, physical characteristics of the atmosphere and physiological effects on the human body.

Capt. B. S. Kelsey, Wright field test pilot and engineer who recently returned from assignment to London to observe actual air battles, reviews existing information on high altitude operations.

Ford Good Drivers League Forming For 1941 Contests

With the nation's high schools preparing for second semester activities, the Ford Good Drivers league today announced details of its 1941 good driving contests, in which $25,800 in scholarships will be awarded boys and girls of high school age throughout the country.

Started last year by Edsel Ford to promote improved driving and increase motoring safety among youth, the Good Drivers league embarks on its second season with one major innovation that is expected to more than double the membership.

Open to Girls, Too

Where the nation-wide 1940 good driving contests were open only to boys, the 1941 contests will be open to girls as well as boys.

This major change in the league program already has produced widespread interest, with indications that girls are fully as anxious as the boys to demonstrate their knowledge and skill at handling an automobile.

Under the new rules set up by Mr. Ford as league president and his national advisory board, girls will compete in a separate division, while the boys also will have a section of their own. There will be no mixed contests.

As awards for the national winners, Mr. Ford revealed that 98 Good Drivers league scholarships would be presented as follows, with identical awards for both the boy and girl divisions: First prize, $5,000 university scholarship; second prize, $2,000 university scholarship; third, fourth and fifth prizes, each $500 scholarships; and the next 44 winners, $100 each.

The contests are open to boys and girls between 14 and 18. In order to qualify for membership in the Ford Good Drivers league, all entrants must be qualified and legally authorized to drive a car in the state in which they reside.

Same Objective

"The Good Drivers League objective this year is the same as last—to encourage better driving among youth," Mr. Ford commented.

"The response to our 1940 contest was very gratifying and encouraged us to broaden the scope of the league's work this year. We feel that over the years the Ford Good Drivers league can and will make an increasingly important contribution to the cause of good driving and to increase safety on our streets and highways.

State competition throughout the nation is scheduled for next July 1, bringing together at a central point in each state the 12 leading boy and 12 best girl contestants. They will be chosen by the League board of judges on the basis of a road test under a qualified observer, a letter on the subject of safe driving, and their answers to a questionnaire on driving.

Not eligible for awards in the contests are the 1940 state champions; sons and daughters of members of the League board of judges and the league advisory board; and employees and sons and daughters of Ford Motor company employees and dealers.

Registration blanks for this district can be obtained from the E. L. Grate Motor Co., local Ford dealer, or by writing to the national headquarters of the Ford Good Drivers league, Dearborn, Mich.

Upon registration, entrants will receive a kit of material that includes a book entitled "How to Become a Skilled Driver," membership card, a membership button and detailed instructions about the contests.

NEGLECT BOOSTS ACCIDENT TOLL

Pennzoil Service Stresses Vital Phase of Auto Care

A statement recently made by an automobile insurance company to the effect that 29 per cent of all unavoidable accidents were caused by failure of front wheel bearings, due to lack of lubrication, should make any motorist sit up and take notice. Many do not seem to know that when they order their car lubricated that it does not include this service.

Pennzoil Service Center at State and Jennings has been making it a point to ask every car owner who has his car lubricated when he has had the front wheels repacked and he says "believe it or not but there are a lot of motorists that have driven their cars two or three years who have never had this service and most of these did not know it was an extra service and not included with regular lubrication."

Surveys reveal that 80 per cent of all automotive repairs and replacements are traced directly to either faulty lubrication or complete disregard to it. The average motorist never realizes to neglect his car for he realizes it is one of his largest money investments but it is just as true, that most of them do, few car owners can truthfully say they do have their car lubricated every 1000 miles and yet that is the recommendation of most manufacturers.

At the Pennzoil Service Center a record is kept of every lubrication service performed and if you wish they will notify you at regular intervals when you should bring in your car for this service.

Salem Loses To South, 43-27; Meets East Palestine Tuesday

QUAKERS TAKEN BY YOUNGSTOWN'S 4TH PERIOD RALLY

Locals Trail by Only Four Points in Third Quarter; Reserves Win

A home-to-road Youngstown South quintet handed the floundering Salem High Quakers their eighth loss, 43 to 27, on South's new floor Saturday night in a game that produced very little, if any, good basketball.

The local reserve outfit, however, bounced back into the win column, giving the South second-stringers a 26 to 22 setback.

The Red and Black will take to the hardwoods again here Tuesday night when they play host to East Palestine's weak Bulldogs in a postponed game.

The punchless Bulldog quintet will offer the Brownmen one of their best opportunities to gain their third victory of the season.

This county fray is scheduled to get under way at 8:30 p. m. with the reserves opening at 7:30.

The Salem varsity showed some promise in the early part of their tilt Saturday when they hooped their first five foul attempts. This performance enabled the Quakers to keep within four points of South in the first half.

Trailing 17-13 going into the third stanza, the locals sowed down for a while but rallied late in the period to trail by only four markers, the quarter ending 27 to 23.

Hopes Vanish Quickly

But Salem's victory hopes vanished quickly in the final frame as South's basketballers peppered the hoop to stretch their lead to 35-23, and then coasted in for the win. The local lads lost all touch with the game in this quarter as they continually lost the ball on bad passes and poor shooting.

There was a definite lack of spirit in the Salem team during the entire fray. This, plus poor ball-handling, prevented the Quakers from ever taking the lead from South, although the latter presented them with enough opportunities to do so.

Practically everyone contributed to the South scoring. Weaver leading the assault with 11 markers, Bob Jaeger led the Salem point-making with six tallies.

Reserves Rally in Fourth

The Red and Black reserves were off to a good start, leading their opponents 9-3 in the first stanza. The second quarter saw the South passers close the gap to trail, 12-11, and then continue their rally to take an 18-17 lead over the Quakers in the third frame.

But the locals pulled ahead in the last period to gain the verdict.

Dick Culberson chalked up seven points to lead the Quakers while Harrison, paced the losers with eight markers.

In Coach Mose Hole's 15 years as basketball coach, the most points made by one of his teams in one game was made against Kenyon at Gambier Feb. 15, 1939, when Wooster won 8 to 48.

"PECK" ON WAY TO FLORIDA; WON'T PREDICT FUTURE

Indian Leader Confident However, As Training Season Nears

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27. — Roger Peckinpaugh headed for the Cleveland Indians training camp today without dropping an official prediction on the 1941 race, but his last-minute conversation reeked with confidence.

The calm pilot of the turbulent Red Sox, trying for a managerial comeback after being fired eight years ago for failing to win, commented:

"I don't like to make any predictions before I have even seen my squad, but I am confident. I think we have done everything we could do so far to strengthen the club."

"Peck" who is being accompanied on the motor trip by his wife and sons, Walker and Jimmy, will stop over in Alabama for quail shooting. After that he plans to spend some time in Saratoga and St. Petersburg, Fla., before going to the Tribe's camp at Fort Myers, Fla. The first squad of players is due Feb. 17.

"I have a date Feb. 8 to umpire an old timers' game in St. Pete," Peckinpaugh said. "Dad (Frank Peckinpaugh), who is 81, plays on one of the teams."

"It's nice to see somebody picking someone besides the Yankees," the new pilot quipped when told that Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox had selected the Indians to win the American league pennant this year.

The Indians will play seven night games at home this season, starting with a May 23 contest against St. Louis. The other dates are June 3—Boston, June 27—Chicago, July 10—Philadelphia, July 17—New York, Aug. 5—Detroit, and Aug. 18—Washington.

Chicago opens the season here April 15. The Cleveland schedules shows two holiday doubleheaders here—with St. Louis July 4th and with Chicago on Labor day.

Raid Technique

BOSTON—This city's police believe in being not only efficient—but original.

In raiding a dice game, one of the policemen lit his pipe, blew smoke into the keyhole of the gambling room. One of the players cried "fire," all of them rushed out the door into the arms of the raiders.

Two weeks ago, one of the raiding officers gained entrance into a gambling game by "meowing" outside the door like a cat.

Plays Selected

Miss Jean McCarthy of S. Lincoln ave. was one of the five members of a committee which chose the Theta Alpha Phi annual production to be given at Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware March 7 and 8.

Miss McCarthy, senior at Ohio Wesleyan, is majoring in speech and education. She is president of Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, and secretary of Theta Alpha Phi. She also belongs to Delta Delta Delta sorority.

DEMPSEY, KEARNS
PLAN RING TOUR

Old Partners Make Up;
Max Baer and Mauler to Give Exhibition

(By International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO—Before the blow-off they used to be as close as ham is to eggs, as chili to beans, like lamb curry and rice—or even as intimate as Scotch is to soda.

Then came 1926 and the parting of the ways for the greatest boxer-manager combination in the history of the game. I split up Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler, and Jack Kearns, the craftiest manager of all time.

It was a bitter, personal feud that separated the two Jacks. For the best part of 14 years, the two men who rose from "rags to riches" maintained a rigid separation that seemed never to be healed.

But time is a great healer, as they say, and now comes 1941 and the new deal that will once again bring the great team together as partners.

Anell Hoffman, manager of the Baer brothers, Max and Buddy, reveals that along about the last half of January, under the direction of "Dapper Jack" Kearns, a tour of the United States will be started featuring Dempsey and Max Baer in three two-minute round exhibitions, with Buddy Baer challenging all comers as an added attraction.

"The tour is just about set," explained Hoffman. "The plan is to bill the Dempsey and Baer exhibitions as a headline for weekly fight cards in the principal fight cities of the country along with Buddy. In return for this attraction Dempsey and Baer will get 50 per cent of the gate, to be split between them, with Kearns taking the usual manager's cut of one-third."

According to present plans, in

Wounded in Draft Evasion Melee

Top, Ernest Eisele and, below, Deputy Robert Jones

Four persons, including two law enforcement officers, were wounded at Pontiac, Ill., when the officers attempted to serve a federal warrant charging a farm youth, Raymond Eisele, 22, with failure to register for selective service. According to Deputy Sheriff Don Morrison, Eisele and his father suddenly drew jackknives and attacked them in the Eisele living room before the officers managed to reach their guns and start shooting. The youth was quoted as saying that "when war breaks out I'll enlist, but until that time what I do is my own business." Eisele is shown, top, seriously wounded, in a hospital and a deputy, Robert Jones, who suffered neck wounds, below.

Kearns will book the Dempsey and Baer brothers act as an advance man and team up the towns he visits over the show.

Hoffman, always optimistic and, in his own right a very shrewd fight manager, believes that if properly handled, the Max Baer-Jack Dempsey combination will net each boxer $50,000.

"Most fight clubs around the country need a bit of needling," he says. Dempsey proved the worth of a shot in the arm for rasslin' when he booted every rasslin' show in which he refereed from 40 to 50 per cent.

"The idea is that the fight promoters would bill their regular weekly fight card, cut it down a bit to allow for the three two-minute round exhibitions between Max and Jack, and then call for volunteers who could stay three rounds with Buddy. If that wouldn't be a great attraction, then I'm going to miss my guess."

Dempsey is sold on the idea, lock, stock and barrel.

"I really believe Jack wants to put Doc Kearns back on his feet, financially," explains Hoffman. "I know when they were together in New York they were on the friendliest terms and I happen to know that Dempsey is determined that his one-time pal should be given a hoist up the ladder again."

Although he didn't say so, Hoffman left the field wide open for the added thought that the motive behind Dempsey's willingness to go through with the contemplated tour may be to purposely give his arch enemy, Monopoly Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, a swift kick in the pants.
